

Full-time Director of Communications: The purpose is to lead the Communications Ministry and related functional areas to effectively support growing PCPC ministries through strong strategic planning, project management (internally and externally), and team leadership and management skills. Responsibilities include proactively and collaboratively working with senior leadership and each ministry department as a consultant, coach and developer for an overall communication strategy in line with PCPC's mission, vision, and strategy. Direct the vision, strategy, organization, and oversight of telling PCPC's story of fruitfulness and spiritual impact using the most effective technologies appropriate to PCPC's culture and classical, innovative style. Develop and maintain brand standards and oversee the re-branding project. Consistently and effectively reach multi-generational audiences through multiple venues in a creative, compelling, relevant, fresh, and real-time way. Evaluate and adjust strategy based on platform analytics. Facilitate capacity for growth in consulting and outsourcing relationships for project-related expertise. College degree required. Agency background strongly preferred. Five plus years leading/managing a team required. Experience in writing, editing, proofing, and overseeing a creative production process as "editor-in-chief" required. Advocate and champion for ministry with strong soft skills as a highly relational bridge-builder using good time management skills. Technologically astute and savvy. Proficient with Microsoft Office and Adobe Creative Suite, MAC, and evolving web applications. Extensive knowledge of PCPC's theology, philosophy, vision, and goals. Relationship with PCPC as a member preferred. Job description can be viewed at www.jobsatpcpc.org. If interested and qualified, send a resume' to careers@pcpc.org. If questions, please email cassie.rawson@pcpc.org