From the city of Louisville website

The City of Louisville is nestled in the rolling "Red Hills" of East Central Mississippi. Geographically considered the doorsteps to North Mississippi due in part to the boundary lines of Winston County on the map. In addition, Highways 15 and 25 merge and intersect Highway 14 (Main Street) in Louisville, Mississippi, creating a critical point in our state for north/south travel. The economic diversity of Louisville includes but not limited to forestry and a variety of wood related industries, agriculture, railroad, logistics, steel, manufacturing, and tourism. Today Louisville proudly boasts a vibrant and thriving historic downtown and embraces newly developed business districts.
