The Presbytery of the Ascension, in cooperation with area PCA churches, is seeking to plant a church in the rapidly growing corridor north of Pittsburgh, PA. Jackson Township, a desirable bedroom community, encompasses the boroughs of Zelienople, Harmony, and Evans City in southwestern Butler County, PA.

Zelienople is a popular destination for both highway travelers and visitors who are attracted to its small town charm. "Zelie" is conveniently located near 1-79 and US 19, and referred to by many residents as a "Crossroads Community."

Harmony, a quaint village of old brick and log buildings, is one of western PA's most historically important places and is a National Historic Landmark District. This town is packed with history and features shops, restaurants, cafes and more – a great way to spend a day walking about.

Evans City is the name given in 1882 at the city's incorporation of a borough of an old settlement. For a long time its site was a favorite camping ground for the Indians, who named the creek Big Beaver Run. When oil was discovered in 1915, it precipitated the growth of the little town. Evans City is located about five miles southeast of Zelienople and Harmony on Rt. 68.

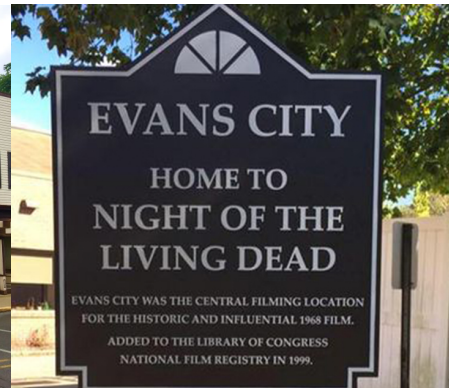

While growing and changing, the local municipalities have taken great steps to preserve the neighborly feel of its long standing communities. But the area's greatest need is the gospel. The Presbytery of the Ascension is hoping that by God's grace a gospel movement will begin in Jackson Township that will spread throughout Western Pennsylvania and beyond.
